WOOL YARN AND SOCKS at the PEOPLE'S EXCHANGE.

From the Continental Monthly.

"Taken Prisoner."

It was a terrible battle. Amid the rattle of musketry and whistling of bullets, the clashing of sabres, the unearthly cries of wounded horses and the wild shouting of men, the clear voice of Lieutenant Hugh Gregory rang out: "Rally! my brave boys, rally, and avenge your Captain's death!"

"Not quite so fast, sir," quietly remarked a rebel officer, bringing his sword to a salute; "you observe that your men are retreating and you are my prisoner."

Hugh saw that it was so, and with a heavy heart gave himself up.

"Hurrah for the Stars and Stripes!" shouted a brave young soldier, attempting to raise himself upon his elbow, but falling back exhausted by the loss of blood,

"D—n you. I'll stripe you!" exclaimed a brutal fellow, rising in his stirrups and aiming a blow at the wounded man.

"Dare to strike a helpless man!" shouted his commander; as he warded off the blow with a stroke that sent the fellow's sabre spinning in the air. "Now dismount and help him if you can." But it was too late; the brave soul had gone out with those words.

"Lieutenant," said the rebel officer, whom we will know as Captain Dumars. "I see that you are wounded. Let me assist you upon this horse, and one of my sergeants will show you the surgeon's quarters. And he bound up the wounded arm as well as he could, helped him upon the horse, and with a playful Au revoir, rode on.

Hugh's wound was too painful, and he was too weak and tired, to wonder or think clearly of anything; he only felt grateful that his captor was a gentleman, and quietly submitted himself to the sergeant's guidance.

The battle was ended in whose favor it does not matter, so far as this story is concerned—and Captain Dumars obtained permission to take Lieutenant Gregory to his mother's house until he should recover from his wound or be exchanged.

When Hugh found himself established in a pleasant little chamber with windows looking out upon the flower garden, and the loved North land, he thought that after all, it was not so terrible to be a prisoner of war. He was decidedly confirmed in this opinion when he occasionally caught a glimpse of the little form of Annie Dumars flitting about among the flowers; and being somewhat of a philospher, in his way, he determined to take it easy.

The presence of one of the Hessians at Mrs. Dumar's house gave it much the same attraction that is attached to a menagerie. Feminine curiosity is an article that the blockade cannot keep out of Dixie, and many were the morning calls that Annie received, and many and various were the methods of pumping adopted to learn something of the prisoner, how he looked, how he acted, how he was dressed, and so forth.

"Impertinence!" he heard Annie exclaim, as one of these gossips passed through the gate, after putting her through a more minute inquisition than usual. And he heard her dainty shoe heels impatiently tapping along the hall, and when she brought in a bouquet of fresh flowers he saw in her face traces of vexation.

"I seem to be quite a What-is-it?"

"Shame!"—and she broke off a stem and threw it out of the window with altogether unnecessary vehemencer.

"Splendid girl!"—thought Hugh, "where have I seen her?"

And he turned his thoughts back through the years that are past, calling up the old scenes; the balls, with their mazy, passionate waltzes, and their promenades on the balcony in the moonlight's mild glow, when sweet lips recited choice selections from Moore, and white hands swayed dainty sandal wood fans with the potency of the most despotic scepters; the sleigh rides, with their wild rollicking fun, keeping time to the merry music of the bells and culminating in the inevitable upset; the closing exercises of the seminary, when blooming girls, in the full efflorescence of hot house culture, make a brief but brilliant display before retiring to the domestic sphere—Oh, yes—

'Miss Dumars, were you not at the —— Institute last year?'

'Yes.'

'Then you know my cousin Jennie Gregory!'

'Yes, indeed,—and you are her cousin. How stupid in me not to recollect it.'

And she told him how that Jennie was her dearest friend, and how in their intimacy of confidence she had told her all about him, and shown her his picture, and—in short, Hugh and Annie began to feel much better acquainted.

It was a few days after this that Hugh sat by the open window, listening to Annie reading from the virtuous and veracious Richmond Enquirer. Distressed by what he heard, not knowing whether it was true or not, he begged her to cease torturing him. She laid aside the paper with an emphatic 'I don't believe it!' that could not but attract his attention, and he looked up in surprise.

'I must tell you, Mr. Gregory—I have been tortured long enough by this forced secrecy—I am a rebel!"

'That is the same we know you by,' he replied, smiling

'But I am a rebellion rebel.' 'Yes,' she added, rising, 'I detest with all my heart this wicked, causeless rebellion I detest the very names of the leaders of it. And yet I am compelled to go about with lies upon my lips, and to act lies, till I detect myself more than all else! I have consoled myself somewhat by making a flag and worshipping it in secret. I will get it and show it to you.'

'This,' she continued, returning with a miniature specimen of the dear old flag, 'a real flag, the emblem of a real living nation, must be kept hidden, its glorious lustre fading away in the dark, while that' pointing to where the 'stars and bars' were fluttering in the breeze. 'That miserable abortion is insolently flaunted before our eyes, nothing about it original or suggestive—except its stolen colors, reminding us of the financial operations of Floyd! Oh, it hope could be prophecy—if a life that is an unceasing prayer for the success of the Federal arms could avail, it would not be long before this bright banner would wave in triumph over all the land, its starry folds gleaming with a purer, more glorious light than ever.'

And as she stood there, with eyes uplifted as in mute prayer, and fervently kissed the silken folds of the flag, Hugh wished that his station in life had been that of an American flag.

Time passed on, and the prisoner was to be exchanged for a rebel officer of equal rank. Captain Dumars brought him the intelligence and was surprised at the seeming indifference with which he received it.

'You don't seem particularly elated by the prospect of getting among the Yankees again.'

'I am eager to take my sword again; but my stay here has been far from unpleasant. You, Captain, have been away so much that I have not been able to thank you for making my imprisonment pleasant. I am at loss to know why you have shown such —'This is the cause,' replied the Captain, laying his finger upon a breastpin that Hugh always wore upon his coat, at the same time unbuttoning his own; 'you see that I wear the same.'

It was a simple jewel, embellished only by a few Greek characters, but it was the emblem of one of these college societies, in which secrecy and mystery add a charm to the ties of brotherhood. And it was this fraternal tie, stronger than that of Freemasonry, because more exclusive, that made Hugh's a pleasant imprisonment, and made him happy in the love of one faithful among the faithless, loyal among many traitors. For of course the reader has surmised—for poetic justice demands it—that Hugh fell desperately in love with Annie, and Annie ditto with Hugh. How he told the tender tale, and how she answered him, whether with the conventional quantity of blushes and sighs, or not—is none of your business, reader, or mine; so don't ask me any questions.

It was the evening of the day before Hugh's departure. They, Annie and Hugh, sat in the little porch, silent and sad, watching the shadows slowly creeping up the mountain's side toward its sun-kissed summit, like a sombre ball of sorrow shrouding a bright hope.

'And to morrow you are free.'

'No, Annie, not free. My sword will be free, but my heart will still linger here a prisoner. But when the war is over, and the old flag restored—'

'Then,' and here her eyes were filled with the glorious light of prophetic hope, 'I will be your prisoner.'

And still Hugh is fighting for the dear old flag; and still Annie is praying for it, and waiting for the sweet imprisonment.

There has been many as sweet a romance as this, reader, acted ere this during the war. Would that all captivity were so pleasant!

THE IRISH FAMINE.—The pressing necessities of our own people during this period of domestic war, cannot wholly repress contributions for the relief of foreign sufferers. Among the manifestations of benevolence in this way, is a contribution taken last week in all the Catholic churches, in the diocese of Chicago—out of which $1,000 have been already sent to Archbishop McHale, and $500 to the Central Committee in Dublin.

The statement of the Irish Archbishop seemed to many to be scarcely warranted by the facts. Close attention to the subject satisfied us that the actual deficiencies of the Irish crops were not exaggerated, though the peasantry seem in rather better condition to meet the calamity than they were in the famine of 1847.

A correspondent of the Pacific Sentinel estimates the number of sheep in California at 2,000,000, and the average amount of fleece on each at three pounds, giving an annual wool crop of 6,000,000 pounds, with a rapidly increasing tendency.

Original.

A Noble Letter.

We print the following communication as the best illustration, and strongest argument in favor of genuine Christian Religion, as well as the most earnest appeal to professors to make their christianity more practical than they generally do. Few persons, few infidels, even, would reject religion if she could always appear in so inviting a dress. The author of this letter will be recognized by many of our readers as the junior partner in the firm of Blair & Persons, Crockery Dealers, Milwaukee; and those who have ever dealt with that firm, to any considerable extent, will, we opine, bear testimony that this letter is characteristic of the man. Mr. Persons was not acting under the impulse of recent conversion when he penned this letter; on the contrary, he has been a professor for many years—a conclusive evidence that genuine heart-religion is an enduring principle, and the one thing which is needed to make this earth a heaven. We give the names, lest the letter might be suspected to be spurious. We are authorised to say that the amount due on the note in question, when cancelled, was nearly $100. We are requested to say that when Mr. P. wrote the letter, he had not the remotest expectation that it would ever go before the public, and that, consequently, it is not to be taken as a sample of his literary performances.

MILWAUKEE, March 20th, 1862.

Dear Stephens: Your favor of the 4th inst., was received some days since, but we were all very busy counting stock, and I delayed replying to you on that account. I regret; my dear friend to learn that the health of yourself and wife is so very poor, and also that you have suffered so much in pecuniary matters. Your greatest misfortune, by far, is your poor health. I hope returning spring and the genial sun of summer will have the effect to give you both new strength and new hopes. In pecuniary matters you are just now with the majority of mortals. If you do not allow yourself to worry and fret about your losses, but allow your experience to give benificent Providence that knows just how many hairs grow on your head and provides for us all just those circumstances which are best calculated to promote our eternal welfare, neither you nor I will ever regret the crushing of your earthly hopes. It is very difficult for us to see how blessings walk abroad in such forbidding disguise, but when you and I stand upon the opposite shore we shall see it all "clear as day." I am, as you may have surmised by this time, a strong believer in constant, special and momentary protection, provision and prevision of the Divine Providence. Every year increases my faith and gives me growing confidence and trust in His loving care for every one of us. Eternity, not time, being His end in view, we are often brought where it looks to our poor vision, as if He and all the Universe had forsaken us—nay, were against us; but we live in time, and consider all things in the light of time—while He lives above time, and views us and all that relates to us in the light of eternity. We need sorrow and affliction, disappointment, pain, and even poverty, sometimes, to make us remember our own frailty and the frailty of all our projects that have their end in time. You may be patient, calm, cheerful and even happy, under any circumstances but that of guilt, if you will I know this by experience.

I have experienced many losses and disappointments in business since 1838; have struggled hard to meet my obligations to my fellows. I have been able to do it, not because I was better, wiser, or more ambitious than you, but because my Heavenly Father has seen this experience to be best for me. It may be that in the future total disaster in my earthly affairs may be necessary for my spiritual good. If it is, pray that the disaster may come, by so much as heavenly riches are better than earthly. I trust, my dear Stephens, that we may both see these things alike, and regard all our experiences, of whatever nature, as the immediate bearing of the Divine and ever blessed Providence upon us, and be cheerful, hopeful, and happy under all circumstances.

Excuse me for preaching you so long a sermon, but you seemed in such a gloomy state of mind when writing your letter, that it seemed to me you were looking down, instead of upward to the bright heavens where you and I have interests that no crisis or rebellion can disturb. I cannot restore your property, my dear friend, but I hope what I have said will at least give you some pleasant thoughts. Your experience has been harder than mine, at least for the last few years, and to even up, as much as I can, I cheerfully return to you your note cancelled, hoping and believing that you will understand my motives in carrying out, into act, what I do not hesitate to preach whenever I have an opportunity. The Lord has plainly taught us how to do by each other, if we cannot enjoy doing as He directs here, we certainly cannot be happy in following His teachings hereafter. Accept, then, this new evidence of my regard for you, in the spirit of a brother, and believe me always and sincerely yours, E. R. PERSONS.

BROWSING AROUND.—A party of gentlemen among whom was a Doctor of Divinity of great comeliness of manner and elegance of address, some months since called at the White House to pay their respects to the President. On inquiring for that dignitary, the servant informed them the President was at dinner, but he would present their cards. The doctor demurred to this, saying they would not disturb Mr. Lincoln, but would call again. Michael persisted in assuring them it would make no difference to the President, and bolted in with the cards. In a few minutes the President walked into the room with a kindly salutation, and a request that the friends would take seats. The doctor expressed his regret that their visit was so ill-timed, and that his excellency was disturbed while at dinner. "Oh! no consequence at all," said the good natured, Mr. Lincoln; "Mrs. Lincoln is absent at present, and, when she is away, I generally browse around."—New Bedford Mercury.

BRICK POMEROYISMS.—If the rebels ask for quarter, of course we will shell out a few.

The bible sentence mene tekel upharsin has been translated—it is mean to tickle your parson.

Jeff Davis says that Lincoln's bubbles will soon burst. So will his shells.

Floyd said two years since that the North and South were different races. That is so, and the rebels are in advance of us.

The difference between the rebels and the loyal troops is this—we rifle the hearts of their living—they rifle the pockets of our dead.

The rebels call northern troops greasy mechanics with big feet. Big feet are very good, when they know several of our men take No. 10.

Parson Brownlow says he never wore whi-kers, and never kissed any woman but his wife. That is too barefaced an assertion.

TENDER TOWARDS DELINQUENTS.—The Portage Register complains that the recent Legislature was exceedingly tender towards delinquent tax-payers in passing an act which "provides that they may pay their taxes any time prior to the last Monday of July, exclusive of interest and advertising fees. As there will be no advertising fees, it was not necessary to say anything on that subject, but how in the name of common sense, the Legislature came to excuse the delinquent from paying interest, as heretofore, on his taxes, is entirely beyond our comprehension."

Towards the close of the revolution, the owners of the North Church, New Haven, sent to Boston for nails to make repairs with, when one of the kegs sent in return was found to contain Spanish dollars. The deacons wrote to the Boston merchant that there was an error in shipping the goods—but he answered that the nails were sold as he bought them from a privateersman, and he could not rectify the mistake. So the silver was melted up and made into a service plate for the church, where it is in use at the present day.

A correspondent, giving an account of the battle of Winchester, says:

'Among the acts of chivalry performed on the field was one by private Graham, of the 84th Pennsylvania. He carried the regimental standard. The left hand, which held it, was shot off, but before the Star Spangled Banner fell to the ground, he grasped it in the remaining hand and held it triumphantly. The right arm was next disabled, but before the colors fell he was killed by the third ball. He was a native of the Emerald Isle.'

Private letters from Thurlow Weed, say he would re-embark for home about the 10th of April. He describes the secession feeling, so rampant in London a while ago, as rapidly dying out, and in no immediate danger of revival. Nobody now dreams of breaking the blockade; and even Mr. Lindsay and Mr. Gregory in Parliament, do not hesitate, "out of doors," to acknowledge that the blockade is effective, and one, therefore, which must be respected.

As Dr. Dwight once passed through a region of very poor land, he said to a farmer: "Sir, I perceive your land is not very productive." "No, sir," said the honest farmer, "our land here is just like self-righteousness." "Ah! and how is that?" asked the Doctor. "Why, sir," said he, "the more a man has of it the poorer he is."

ANOTHER MONSTER CANNON CAST.—On Saturday morning another 15 inch Rodman gun was cast at the Port Pitt Works. The rough casting in the pit weighs about 78,000 pounds, and nearly 40 tons of metal were melted for the purpose, in three furnaces.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

'No, sir, I complain of Mario, who prevents my hearing you.'

Among the excuses offered for exemption from service in the southern army, one fellow wrote opposite his name, "one leg too short." Another, thinking to better it, wrote opposite his, "both legs too short." He had been reading some of the exploits of the southern armies, doubtless, and supposed legs to be the first essential.

Governor Harvey Drowned

The people of Milwaukee and other cities of the State were painfully affected by the telegraphic announcement yesterday, that Governor HARVEY had fallen into the river at Savannah, Tennessee, on Saturday evening, and was drowned

The sad news passed rapidly along our streets, from man to man, and from house to house. It was as if the whole population had been bereft of a friend. The sorrow and gloom were general and deep. Later in the day, a hundred flags on public buildings and shipping went mournfully up to half mast, the bells of the city were tolled, and the cannon, with a sullen sound boomed a solemn requiem for the honored dead.

The popular demonstrations of grief over the sudden death of the Chief Executive of the State are no meaningless formality. Wisconsin never elected a Governor to rule over her personally more respected than LOUIS P HARVEY. Last autumn we earnestly opposed his election to the office he has since so honorably filled but neither during that somewhat animated contest, nor since, did we ever hear one harsh word spoken of him, or seen an unkind word written. His personal integrity was above suspicion, and he leaves behind him a name untainted, and a record unstained by a breath of suspicion as to the purity and sincerity of his public or private conduct.

Gov HARVEY was a native of Connecticut. He came to this State nearly twenty years ago, and settled at Southport, now Kenosha. He was then both young and poor, and for some time supported himself by teaching school. Soon after he became the editor of The Southport American—a whig newspaper—which he conducted with considerable ability but without much pecuniary success. Subsequently he removed to Rock county and was elected from there to the second constitutional convention. In [illegible] he was returned to the State Senate from the southern district of that county, and served until the close of the session of '57. In [illegible] he was nominated and elected Secretary of State on the republican ticket, and served in that office until last December. At the late fall election, at the age of [illegible] he was chosen Governor for the two years beginning in January last, having been nominated for that position both by the Union and Republican conventions.

He was a man of more than ordinary practical business capacity, always upright, firm, independent, conscientious, frank, benevolent, genial and cheerful. He had no personal enemies and many warm personal friends in all parts. When he lost his life he was upon an errand of mercy Wisconsin should [illegible] and trouble. With [illegible] of a woman he had hastened to the relief, hesitating in his department [illegible] enough to call upon his fellow citizens by telegraph to send on the necessary aid. In the prime of his life, upon the very threshold of the honors to which he had nobly aspired, the bubbling waters have closed over him—and he is lost to human vision forever.—Mil News

Proclamation

MADISON April 22d 1862

Whereas, It has pleased Almighty God to take from the people of this State its Chief Magistrate the Hon Louis P Harvey, who, on the nineteenth of this month lost his life in the waters of the Tennessee River, while executing a noble and self chosen mission of philanthropy in trying to recover from the recent battle held in Tennessee, the dead and to alleviate the sufferings of the wounded soldiers of his State

Therefore, I Edward Salomon, Governor of the State of Wisconsin on assuming the duties of the office devolved upon me by that sad event, do hereby in behalf of the State, tender to the bereaved widow of its late beloved chief magistrate the deep and sorrowful sympathy and condolence of its people, and I do hereby recommend that for thirty days from this date all public offices, court houses and other public buildings, be clad in mourning and that during that time the people of this State wear the usual badges of mourning, and I do further appoint Thursday, the 1st day of May A D, 1862 as a day of public rest and cessation of business, and recommend to the people of this State that on that day, between the hours of ten and twelve o clock in the morning they assemble in their respective towns, cities and villages then and there to commemorate the death of the late Governor the Hon Louis P Harvey, by such public demonstrations as may be appropriate to the occasion

EDWARD SALOMAN, Gov

Proceedings

Of a meeting of the citizens of Appleton held in Adkins' Hall, Tuesday Evening April 22d

At a meeting of the citizens, called by the Mayor of the city on receipt of intelligence of the death of Gov Harvey, His Honor, R R BATEMAN was called to the Chair, and R Z MASON was elected Secretary. After some preliminary remarks a Committee of five was appointed to draft resolutions expressive of our sense of so great a public loss, and to make such other arrangements as are thought proper in the premises, and to report at an adjourned meeting

The Committee consisted of R Z Mason, E C Goff, Robert Smith, F Packard and A. B. Jackson

Meeting adjourned to Thursday at 7½ o'clock P M. R R BATEMAN, Chn
R. Z MASON, Sec'y

At the adjourned meeting the Hon P B Hudd was called for and spoke as follows

Mr. President Wisconsin mourns. Her public offices are draped in the habiliments of sorrow. Her Chief Magistrate, the Hon Louis P HARVEY, has suddenly been called away from the scene of his earthly labors to a [illegible] true on a higher and wider theatre of usefulness. I knew Gov Harvey well and though differing with him politically I esteemed him as a friend. Gov Harvey was not a mere politician, he was a statesman; he was a gentleman in the most perfect sense of that term possessing that urbanity of manner which springs from an honest heart and a benevolent, kindly nature. [illegible] knew him but to respect him.

Judge John [illegible] Jr was called upon and responded [illegible] paying a beautiful tribute to his private life. [illegible] We regret [illegible] remarks but [illegible] were received [illegible] compelled to omit them.

The following [illegible] of Arrangements was then read and adopted

THE GENIUS OF SIGEL.—Among the few prominent American military men who have won distinction by their skill and bravery in the present war, one name that stands [illegible] above them all a peerless star whose luster will be immortal in our annals is General Franz Sigel. The battle in which he has been engaged under circumstances varying and peculiar, the large [illegible] numbers against him, the long and rapid march es he has made, his masterly retreats at Carthage and Pea Ridge—each ending with victory against three fold numbers, the wonderful coolness and daring with which he inspires his soldiers, the precision and celerity of his movements amid furious storms of rifle and cannon balls to win sure victory from the grasp of defeat where most commanders would have regarded farther effort hopeless furnish an aggregate of data from which it is most conclusively evident that he possesses the grave military genius and accomplishments and executive force which make the great commander. It is often that a general gains a single battle by the aid of favoring circumstances which gives him a temporary reputation of a high character when after trials and results prove him to possess but very ordinary capacity. But Sigel has been tried in so many ways, meeting perils and difficulties in numerous and varying forms that the certainty of his mastery ability has been demonstrated beyond controversy. His actions and achievement read like the stirring pages and heroic romance, and will be valued by the future generations of his adopted country as among the most precious treasures of American history

The possession of New Orleans, the capture of Fort Pillow, and as a consequence, of Memphis and the defeat of Beauregard's army, will end the war in the West, so far as the movements of great armies are concerned. There will be some forts to take and small bodies of rebel soldiery to pursue, but 100,000 troops will be sufficient for the work, from the Alleghanies to the Rio Grande. Fort Pillow and New Orleans are doubtless ours ere this, and if Beauregard risks a battle there can scarcely be a doubt as to the result. A retreat would be for him is a defeat

The conquest of the Mississippi valley practically ends the rebellion, and unless the signs of the times are very deceptive that consummation is not far off

☞ Agreeably [illegible] of the Rev J [illegible] Anderson [illegible] about $100 in money and [illegible] blessings [illegible]

☞ [illegible] to the fact that [illegible] the Fourth Ward Ravine Bridge will be received by the Bridge Committee of the city until Monday evening next for either a timber bridge or a [illegible] Plan and Specifications may be examined at the city clerks office We trust that bidders will exhibit as much displays of economy as possible, and not endeavor to [illegible] job at double price, merely because the city is a public body [illegible] at, and it would be as well to [illegible] that any and all [illegible] may be rejected

☞ Sundry individuals [illegible] in the habiliment of [illegible] can be seen daily in our streets It may be possible these chaps have only lodged with some soldier and cabbaged his clothes but [illegible] is not the case, we think, if Uncle Sam continues to feed them with allopathic doses of Treasury Notes and gold, the sooner the old gentleman claims his own, the better for our community Our govt is throwing away money [illegible] various other ways without purchasing useless men who are either too lazy and cowardly or too weakly and decrepit to be serviceable to our nation at this time Make these men do duty [illegible] their pay

☞ Friends of Liberal education thus who would assist in to bring the best College in our State and placing it above the fluctuations of the times now is the time to evince your philanthropy Many of you have lands in abundance from which you are now realizing nothing Donate a part of them to Lawrence University, and her agent will sell those lands to settlers on long time, and at low rates, only requiring the interest in advance The result will be that your remaining lands will be enhanced in value, our counties and towns will become rapidly settled by an industrious class of settlers, and the truth will be that the towns giving the largest quantities of lands donated in this manner will receive the greatest benefit The University receiving them exempt from taxation of course can afford to sell them at the very lowest rates and the terms of payment will be so easy that any man can afford to purchase In lieu of this exemption proving an injury to the State it will be thousands of dollars benefit

Recollect that a provision of the Bill granting this exemption provides that the President of the University shall before the 1st of June in each year certify to the Clerk of Board of Supervisors in each County the amount and description of the lands so received for exemption, therefore it becomes necessary for those who wish to make their donations available this year to attend to it at once For the donations made after the 1st of June, are subject to taxation for that year

Shade Trees

It is about the [illegible] when trees can be transplanted with ease and security We would [illegible] urge our landowners, whether in the city or country [illegible] setting out [illegible]

We are called upon this week to perform a painful duty Charles A Grignon, one of Wisconsin's Pioneers, is no more He died at his residence at Kaukauna on Friday, the 18th inst, after an illness of but 24 hours, in which he endured all that pain could inflict He was born at Kaukauna in the year 1807 and is therefore 55 years of age He has filled important stations under the National Government State and was Treasurer of Outagamie County in 1853-4 He was a very amiable kind and genial, always ready to lend the hand of assistance to the needy [illegible] always made him loved [illegible] by all who knew him He was a kind father a true husband, a reliable friend, and a good citizen Truly, can we say—

THE CRESCENT.

The congregation of one of the churches in Troy, N. York, were somewhat amused, Sunday morning, to find in each of the pews a printed card, informing them where they could get their whitewashing done. The sexton of the church, a colored man, is an artist in lime, and adopted this novel way of soliciting patronage. He ought to have it.

Jones and Brown were talking lately of a young clergyman whose preaching they had heard that day. The sermon was like a certain man mentioned in a certain biography—"very poor and very pious." "What do you think of him?" asked Brown. "I think," said Jones, "he did much better two years ago." "Why, he didn't preach then," said Brown. "True," said Jones, "that is what I mean."

"THAT STANDARD SHEET."

Great National Banner of Intellect,

FOR

American Hearts and Homes!

THE

New York Mercury.

A NEW YEAR WITH AN OLD FRIEND.

On New Year's day of 1862, that world-renowned and unrivaled gem of American journalism, the peerless New York Mercury, will enter upon the twenty-fourth year of the most brilliant career ever achieved by a paper. During the past year it has been the teacher, story-teller, mentor, and oracle of two hundred thousand American homes, from ocean to ocean—and from Quebec, in Canada, to Pensacola, on the Gulf of Mexico. Young and old, rich and poor, have reveled in its enchanting stores of wisdom, romance, art, poetry, and genial humor; and its praise is "Familiar in their mouths as household words."

The noble patriot-soldier in his tent, too, has whiled away the tedium of camp life in the absorbing review of its finding in them a fascinating mental discipline known only to those who rally to the Banner-sheet of the Grand Army of American Intellect and Genius!

In commencing a New Year, the proprietors of The New York Mercury can only say, that it shall be their aim to make their great family journal of American literature, for 1862, more brilliant and enchanting than ever, in its concentration of all the world's grandest and most beautiful specialities in healthful Romance, graceful Poetry, elegant and quaint Gossip, refining Knowledge, sparkling Humor, and entertaining News—until, like love, it "—— rules the court, the camp, the bower" as it already rules the happy domestic fireside.

The editorial tone and National departments of The New York Mercury will continue true to that lofty spirit of patriotism which has made it a necessity of the people since the War began, and kept it in enthusiastic demand when other sheets were dying all around it for want of popular support.

Already the largest Literary Journal in the world, and famous as the focus of a thousand brilliant literary reputations, its programme for 1862 will be magnificent beyond all precedent. The most celebrated pens of this country and Europe have been secured in its service, at an outlay equal to the expense of more than one national government in the Old World! and its novelettes, or continued stories, for 1862, will be the most splendid triumphs of elegant Fiction ever published. To these, too, the magic pencil of the greatest of American artists, Mr. Felix O. C. Darley, will lend the aid of pictorial art.

Our story, initiatory of the New Year, is a splendid national Romance, commencing in the New York Mercury of Saturday, January 4th, 1862, and entitled

THE RATTLESNAKE;

OR

THE REBEL PRIVATEER.

A TALE OF THE PRESENT TIME.

BY NED BUNTLINE

IT IS THE GREATEST NOVELETTE SINCE THE DAYS OF MARRYATT.

THE NEW YORK MERCURY is sold by all newsmen and periodical dealers in America. To subscribers, it is regularly mailed every Saturday morning for $2 a year; three copies, for $5; six copies for $9; eight copies for $12, with an extra copy free, to the getter up of the club. Wm. B. Young & Co., General Agents for the North west, 115 Lake St, Chicago, Ill.

13 Newhall House, Milwaukee, Wis., J. A. French agent.

THE GROVER & BAKER SEWING MACHINES are now preferred to all others for family use, because

THE GROVER & BAKER SEWING MACHINES are more simple and easily learned, and less liable to get out of order than any other.

THE GROVER & BAKER SEWING MACHINES make the strongest seam known, and one that will not RIP OR RAVEL though every fourth stitch is cut.

THE GROVER & BAKER SEWING MACHINES sew from two ordinary spools, and thus all trouble of winding thread is avoided, while the same machine can be adapted at pleasure by a mere change of spools to all varieties of work.

THE GROVER & BAKER SEWING MACHINES run silk, linen thread and spool cotton, with equal facility.

THE GROVER & BAKER SEWING MACHINES make an elastic seam which is free from all liability to break in washing, ironing or otherwise.

THE GROVER & BAKER SEWING MACHINES make a stitch that is more beautiful than any other made, either by hand or machine.

THE GROVER & BAKER SEWING MACHINES allow the work to pass directly over the table, so that the operator can readily see in the open press or foot exactly where every stitch is taken in the fabric and easily guide the work straight.

THE GROVER & BAKER SEWING MACHINE is needed

in every farmer's family,
in every mechanic's family,
in every merchant's family,
in every professional man's family,

in every family where it is desirable to make sewing easy, pleasant or profitable

THE SPECIFIC PILL.

A SPECIFIC REMEDY FOR

Spermatorrhea, or Seminal Weakness, and General Irrability in either sex

This Malady, the terrible consequences of which are too well known to require more than a bare allusion to them, is one of the most insidious, and therefore dangerous, of all the long catalogue of human ills. It saps the very springs of life, rapidly undermines the constitution, and sinks the unhappy victim into imbecility and a premature grave! From one to six boxes of the Specific Pill are generally sufficient to effect a permanent cure in the most aggravated cases, whether Constitutional, or arising from Abuse or Excesses.

MEDICAL TESTIMONY.

"We believe it to be, in the treatment of Spermatorrhea, as near a Specific as any medicine can be." B. Keith, M. D. [Am Jour of Med Sci.
